

Sean Bott

Speaker, Trainer, Entertainer
Mentalist

Keynote Speaker, Corporate Trainer, and Comedy Mentalist, Sean Bott grew-up in Saudi Arabia, where inhaling desert-dust and scorching-heat has severely warped his brain. The good news is, he can now provide training, tool sets, and inspiration that will reconnect you, your company, and your campus with humanity. He will help you solve the human disconnect created by world wide technological interconnectedness.

He has entertained corporate audiences such as: 20th Century Fox, Disney, and Pacific Steel. Corporate audiences love his blend of hilarious character and psychic entertainment (just wait until you see their reactions for yourself). Sean's been featured on MTV, Sci-Fi and the CW. His film credits include Disney's Guide to Life, the Sci-Fi Channel's Dead Rail, and 127 Hours with James Franco.

Although most agree Sean's mental feats are awesome, it's his speaking and training for corporate spaces that leave you wondering why you didn't find him sooner. Your sales and marketing teams will remember what it's like to speak "human" and your organizational culture will move from texts and touchscreens to handshakes and the lost art of eye contact (shh, don't be afraid).

Book Sean if you're ready to (re)learn the Art of Connection and remember how building lasting, trusting relationships actually required (and still does) a sense of belonging, mutual understanding, and (yep) sharing the human experience.